EDITORIAL POLICY
The mission of the Alliance of Universities for Democracy (AUDEM) is to promote the development of democratic values, civil society, civic engagement, and intercultural understanding through international exchange among institutions of higher education. AUDEM: The International Journal of Higher Education and Democracy is a scholarly peer-reviewed journal that focuses on many of the initiatives introduced and shared at annual international conferences. Colleagues from varying international academic institutions present on issues related to higher education development in emerging democracies and gather to form collaborative partnerships to advance the initiatives valued by this organization. The composition of this journal is representative of international scholars committed to development of democratic values. AUDEM encourages submissions of articles working from objectivist, interpretive, critical, or other epistemologies. Given the diversity of perspectives in current research, the journal expects to review a variety of articles representing (1) traditional quantitative or qualitative empirical articles, (2) integrative research reviews, (3) traditional theoretical pieces contributing to new theory, and (4) well-constructed, well-argued conceptual papers that are thought provoking.

Areas of interest for this peer-reviewed journal include, but are not limited to, the following topics:
■ Social Responsibility of Academic Institutions / Sustainability
■ International Academic Partnerships
■ University Partnerships for Education and Citizenship (UPEC)
  UPEC invites papers on existing UPEC partnerships; on educating young citizens for the challenge of globalization; current trends in democratic transition and development.
■ Societies, Civil Society and Political Regimes in Flux in the Era of Globalization & Economic Crisis
  We invite papers across a broad range of topics with focus not only on the impact of globalization on families, religion, societies, and the like, but also the impact of the current economic crisis.
■ Role of Global Health and Social Justice in Developing Democratic Societies
■ Inclusion of the Excluded & Marginalized
  The Roles of Women, Minority Nationalities and Ethnic Groups in Civil Society
■ Developments in Higher Education in Central and Eastern Europe
  We invite papers on institutional change, new directions in pedagogy, implementing Bologna, universities & Civil society, quality assurance and related topics. We also invite papers on the impact of the current world economic crisis on higher education. How, for example, might the crisis impact mobility of students and faculty, available resources, and the like.
■ Developments in Humanities, Social Sciences, the Arts, and Literature
  We invite papers on recent developments in art, music, theater, cinema, poetry, and literature (in the context of democracy) and recent developments in academic disciplines and intellectual life (e.g. history, philosophy, literary criticism, “public” intellectual life, politics, political science, sociology, etc.).
