THE OTHER NEW YORK

The American Revolution beyond New York City, 1763–1787
Joseph S. Tiedemann and Eugene R. Fingerhut, editors

Essays exploring rural New York during the American Revolution.

The Other New York provides the first comprehensive look at New York State’s rural areas during the American Revolution. This county-by-county survey of the regions outside of New York City describes the social and cultural conditions on the eve of the Revolution and details the events leading up to the conflict, the battles and campaigns fought within the state, the hardships civilians experienced while creating new local governments and supplying the war effort, and postwar reconstruction efforts. It also chronicles the impact that the war had on the European Americans, Native Americans, and African Americans. These groups endured years of strife yet went on to create New York State.

Joseph S. Tiedemann is Professor of History at Loyola Marymount University and author of Reluctant Revolutionaries: New York City and the Road to Independence, 1763–1776. Eugene R. Fingerhut is Professor Emeritus of History at California State University at Los Angeles and author of Survivor: Cadwallader Colden II in Revolutionary America.

A volume in the SUNY series, An American Region: Studies in the Hudson Valley
Thomas S. Wermuth, editor

March / 256 pages
Illustrated: 3 maps, 3 tables
$60.00 hc only ISBN 0-7914-6371-0

HOSPITAL TRANSPORTS

A Memoir of the Embarkation of the Sick and Wounded from the Peninsula of Virginia in the Summer of 1862
Edited and with an Introduction by Laura L. Behling

Details the reactions of men and women serving aboard a hospital transport ship during the American Civil War.

The care of the sick, wounded, and dying during the American Civil War was a complex endeavor that brought ordinary men and women into contact with the terror of the battlefield. Hospital Transports is a compilation of letters and other papers written by physicians and nurses serving aboard the Union hospital steamboat Daniel Webster in the summer of 1862. The text details sleeping arrangements, cooking and feeding schedules, medical practices, and the incorporation of liberated slaves from the Lee plantation into the daily work of the ship. Clearly described are the emotional, visceral reactions of the corps of medical personnel who, as their ship makes its way along the Potomac picking up casualties, question the philosophies at the root of war, and the metaphysical questions concerning the definitions of life and death.

“Hospital Transports represents a microcosm of the Civil War. The first-hand perspectives, by both men and women, is an especially interesting and unique dimension of the text.” — Bruce Mills, editor of Letters from New-York by Lydia Maria Child

T he collected letters in Hospital Transports offer historians a rich source for understanding how women and men responded to the gruesome battlefield scenes of the Civil War.” — Judith Ann Giesberg, author of Civil War Sisterhood: The U.S. Sanitary Commission and Women’s Politics in Transition

Laura L. Behling is Assistant Professor of English at Gustavus Adolphus College and the author of The Masculine Woman in America, 1890–1935.

March / 128 pages
Trim size: 5½ x 8½
Illustrated: 4 maps
$30.00 hc only ISBN 0-7914-6369-9
ENEMIES OF CIVILIZATION

Attitudes toward Foreigners in Ancient Mesopotamia, Egypt, and China
Mu-chou Poo

Looks at how foreigners were regarded in three ancient civilizations, finding that cultural, not biophysical, differences were key in distinguishing “us” from “them.”

Enemies of Civilization is a work of comparative history and cultural consciousness that discusses how “others” were perceived in three ancient civilizations: Mesopotamia, Egypt, and China. Each civilization was the dominant culture in its part of the world, and each developed a mind-set that regarded itself as culturally superior to its neighbors. Mu-chou Poo compares these societies’ attitudes toward other cultures and finds differences and similarities that reveal the self-perceptions of each society.

Notably, this work shows that in contrast to modern racism based on biophysical features, such prejudice did not exist in these ancient societies. It was culture rather than biophysical nature that was the most important criterion for distinguishing us from them.

By examining how societies conceive their prejudices, this book breaks new ground in the study of ancient history and opens new ways to look at human society, both ancient and modern.

“Poo is a discerning and skillful historian who, by critically using his sources, has forged a highly readable and persuasive comparative exposition on the perception and conception of ‘otherness’ in the ancient world. He shows us how a cross-cultural narrative may be woven.” — On-cho Ng, author of Cheng-Zhu Confucianism in the Early Qing: Li Guangdi (1642–1718) and Qing Learning

Mu-chou Poo is Professor and Research Fellow in the Institute of History and Philology at Academia Sinica in Taiwan. He is the author of several books, including In Search of Personal Welfare: A View of Ancient Chinese Religion, also published by SUNY Press.

A volume in the SUNY series in Chinese Philosophy and Culture
Roger T. Ames, editor

February / 224 pages
Illustrated: 13 figures
$25.95 pb ISBN 0-7914-6364-8
$81.50 hc ISBN 0-7914-6363-X

REDREAMING AMERICA

Toward a Bilingual American Culture
Debra A. Castillo

Pursues an inquiry into the cultural and linguistic dissonances that Spanish creates in the United States.

What would American literature look like in languages other than English, and what would Latin American literature look like if we understood the United States to be a Latin American country and took seriously the work by U.S. Latinos/as in Spanish? Debra A. Castillo explores these questions by highlighting the contributions of Latinos/as writing in Spanish and Spanglish. Beginning with the anonymously published 1826 novel Jicotea and ending with fiction published at the turn of the twenty-first century, the book details both the characters’ and authors’ struggles with how to define an American self. Writers from Cuba, Puerto Rico, and Mexico are featured prominently, alongside a sampling of those writers from other Latin American heritages (Peru, Colombia, Chile). Castillo concludes by offering some thoughts on U.S. curricular practice.

“The range of authors she analyzes is impressive—from internationally known writers like Carlos Fuentes, Ana Lydia Vega, and Ariel Dorfman, to established writers in their individual countries like Gustavo Sainz, to Rolando Hinojosa-Smith and Dolores Prida, to up-and-coming authors like Giannina Braschi.” — Rolando J. Romero, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

Debra A. Castillo is Stephen H. Weiss Presidential Fellow and Professor of Romance Studies and of Comparative Literature at Cornell University and the coauthor (with María-Socorro Tabuenca Córdoba) of Border Women: Writing from La Frontera.

A volume in the SUNY series in Latin American and Iberian Thought and Culture
Jorge J. E. Gracia and Rosemary Geisdorfer Feal, editors

January / 232 pages
$24.95 pb ISBN 0-7914-6298-6
$75.50 hc ISBN 0-7914-6297-8