In Language and Politics in Julia Kristeva, Carol Mastrangelo Bové explores how Kristeva’s theoretical and fictional writings contribute to an understanding of contemporary personal and international conflicts. In addition to examining Kristeva’s turn to Eastern models—both Russian and Chinese—in thinking through a critique of symbolic language in Western patriarchal psychic formations, Bové also contributes to the debate over essentialism through innovative interpretations of such major works of twentieth-century French culture as Marcel Proust’s Remembrance of Things Past, Simone de Beauvoir’s She Came to Stay, François Truffaut’s Jules and Jim, and Jean Renoir’s Rules of the Game. Bové argues that the links between the body and the female, on the one hand, and authority and the male, on the other, are psychologically constructed, and are not necessarily or exclusively biological. The book concludes with an examination of Kristeva’s Colette.

“Bové knows in intimate detail the large, difficult body of Kristeva’s work and its sources, effectively engages with others who have written on Kristeva, and ranges across the intellectual and cultural spectrum to make illuminating connections. This valuable book will help make Kristeva available to readers who might otherwise not have known why they should be interested.” — Jonathan Arac, Columbia University

“Bové deals with a topic that is central in a variety of fields: the complex inter-relationship of language, subjectivity, and politics. This book will be of interest not only to those in literary and cultural studies, but also to those in women’s studies, psychology, philosophy, and anthropology. Clear and accessible, it makes a significant contribution to the broader debates about critical agency.” — Daniel T. O’Hara, Temple University

Carol Mastrangelo Bové is Professor of French at Westminster College in Pennsylvania.

A volume in the SUNY series in Psychoanalysis and Culture
Henry Sussman, editor

JANUARY | 172 pp.
Trim size: 5 ½ x 8 ½
$18.95 pb 0-7914-6650-7
$56.50 hc 0-7914-6649-3

Reminiscent of More’s Utopia and Swift’s Gulliver’s Travels, Denis Veiras’s History of the Sevarambians is one of the great utopian novels of the seventeenth century. Set in Australia, this rollicking adventure story comes complete with a shipwreck, romantic tales, religious fraud, magical talismans, and supernatural animals. The current volume contains two versions of Veiras’s story: the original English and the 1738 English translation of the expanded French version. Veiras’s work was well known in its own time and has been translated into a number of languages, including German, French, Russian, and Japanese, while the English version has been largely forgotten. The book has been read to teach a variety of political doctrines, and also has been cited as an early development in the history of ideas about religious toleration. It reveals a great deal about early modern English, Dutch, and French attitudes toward other cultures. One of the first utopian writings to qualify as a novel, it can be interpreted as a metaphor for human life, in all its complexity and ambiguity.

“Having the two texts in the same book provides easy access to texts that are difficult to find and enables an easy comparison between the early English version and the later French version. The French version had a huge impact on French literature and is now on its way to becoming a classic, not only for scholars who study utopian literature, but also for people interested in seventeenth-century literature and philosophy.” — Denis D. Grélé, Wellesley College

John Christian Laursen is Professor of Political Science at the University of California at Riverside. He is the editor of many books, including Religious Toleration: “The Variety of Rites” from Cyrus to Defoe. Cyrus Masroori is Assistant Professor of Political Science at California State University at San Marcos.

MAY | 448 pp.
3 line drawings, 3 tables
$29.95 pb 0-7914-6778-3
$89.50 hc 0-7914-6777-5
MOCKING THE AGE
The Later Novels of Philip Roth
ELAINE B. SAFER

Explores the comic devices Roth uses to satirize his times, the Jewish community, and himself.

The first comprehensive assessment of Philip Roth's later novels, Mocking the Age offers rich and insightful readings that explore how these extraordinary works satirize our contemporary culture. From The Ghost Writer to The Plot Against America, Roth uses humor to address deadly serious matters, including social and political issues, psychological problems, postmodern concerns, and the absurd. In her clear and extensive analyses of these works, Elaine B. Safer looks at how Roth's approach to the comic incorporates the self-deprecating humor of Jewish comedians, as well as the humor of nineteenth-century Eastern European Jewish storytellers and such twentieth-century writers as Bernard Malamud and Saul Bellow. Filling the void on critical examinations of Roth's later work, Safer's book provides a thorough appraisal of Roth's lifetime accomplishment and an essential evaluation of his comic genius.

"Safer's treatment is a reflection of her deep and meticulously researched involvement with Roth and her obvious desire to do justice to him. This book will stand for years to come as the definitive work on the later novels of Philip Roth."
— Daniel Walden, editor of Twentieth-Century American-Jewish Fiction Writers

"Safer explores the relation of humor to theme, form, and narration in ways that are consistently intelligent, illuminating, and interesting. She draws easily and gracefully on contemporary and nineteenth-century American fiction, on the wide critical response to Roth's work, and on other historical and philosophical texts that explain Roth's texts and methods."
— Judith Yaross Lee, author of Defining New Yorker Humor

Elaine B. Safer is Professor of English at the University of Delaware and the author of The Contemporary American Comic Epic: The Novels of Barth, Pynchon, Gaddis, and Kesey.

A volume in the SUNY series in Modern Jewish Literature and Culture
Sarah Blacher Cohen, editor

MAY | 230 pp.
$21.95 pb 0-7914-6710-4
$65.50 hc 0-7914-6709-0
ANDRÉ GIDE AND THE SECOND WORLD WAR
A Novelist’s Occupation
JOCELYN VAN TUYL

The first complete study of Gide’s neglected wartime writings.

Arguably the most influential French writer of the early twentieth century, André Gide is a paradigmatic figure whose World War II writings offer an exemplary reflection of the challenges facing a leading writer in a time of national collapse. Tracing Gide’s circuitous “intellectual itinerary” from the fall of France through the postwar purge, this book examines the ambiguous role of France’s senior man of letters during the Second World War. The writer’s intricate maneuverings offer privileged insights into three issues of broad significance: the relationship of literature and politics in France during World War II, the repressions and repositionings that continue to fuel controversy about the period, and the role of public intellectuals in times of national crisis.

With the exception of the early wartime Journal, Gide’s publications during France’s “dark years” have received little critical attention. This book scrutinizes the entire wartime oeuvre in depth, tracing the evolution of Gide’s political views and, most importantly, reading the wartime texts against each other. It is the interplay among these texts that reveals the full complexity of Gide’s political positionings and the rhetorical brilliance he deployed to redress his tarnished image.

“Van Tuyl has assembled a wide range of well-researched and well-supported arguments that restore to its necessary breadth and depth the historical and ideological context of the period. The book is a clear, concise, and thorough treatment of Gide’s activities around World War II and is a polished reference work that will be invaluable to scholars and students of Gide for years to come.” — Walter Putnam, The University of New Mexico

“This is an extraordinary look into a man who alleged utter frankness but could only be as honest as his changing view of himself permitted.” — Kenneth Krauss, author of The Drama of Fallen France: Reading la Comédie sans Tickets

Jocelyn Van Tuyl is Associate Professor of French at the New College of Florida.

APRIL | 320 pp.
$65.00 hc 0-7914-6713-9

BURIED CAESARS, AND OTHER SECRETS OF ITALIAN AMERICAN WRITING
ROBERT VISCUSI

Examines the forces that have shaped Italian American writing, from the novels of John Fante to the musings of Tony Soprano.

Robert Viscusi takes a comprehensive look at Italian American writing by exploring the connections between language and culture in Italian American experience and major literary texts. Italian immigrants, Viscusi argues, considered even their English to be a dialect of Italian, and therefore attempted to create an American English fully reflective of their historical, social, and cultural positions. This approach allows us to see Italian American purposes as profoundly situated in relation not only to American language and culture but also to Italian nationalist narratives in literary history as well as linguistic practice. Viscusi also situates Italian American writing within the “eccentric design” of American literature, and uses a multidisciplinary approach to read not only novels and poems, but also houses, maps, processions, videos, and other artifacts as texts.

“Avoiding the jargon that often accompanies treatments of language, form, and meaning, Viscusi admits personal experience as well as analytic skill into the toolbox he uses to explore particular texts and social issues. The result is a book that is not only an important look at the role of language in creating and sustaining both the tie to Italy and American self-construction, but also an astute meditation on how cultures can be connected through language.” — Josephine G. Hendin, author of Heartbreakers: Women and Violence in Contemporary Culture and Literature

Robert Viscusi is Professor of English and Executive Officer at The Ethyle R. Wolfe Institute for the Humanities, Brooklyn College, The City University of New York. He is the author of many books, including Max Beerbohm, or, The Dandy Dante: Rereading with Mirrors and Astoria: A Novel, winner of a 1996 American Book Award.

A volume in the SUNY series in Italian/American Culture
Fred L. Gardaphe, editor

JANUARY | 272 pp.
$65.00 hc 0-7914-6633-7